

NEW WITNESS OF KILLING IN CARMAN HOME IS DISCOVERED

Disappearance of Maid Also Supports Theory She, Too, May Reveal Additional Details of Shooting.

Mrs. Bailey's Mother Lays Daughter's Death to Jealousy—Thinks Shot Was Fired Within House.

FREEPORT, L. I., July 12.—Another eyewitness to the shooting of Mrs. Louise Bailey—one who is so carefully guarded by District Attorney Smith that he will not even tell the sex of the person—will go before the grand jury when that body takes up on Tuesday the consideration of the murder in the office of Dr. Edwin Carman.

It had been rumored that the prosecutor was in possession of the story of such a witness, and when he was asked if this was not so he replied: "You are not far from the truth. That is all I can say."

It is promised, however, that the story this witness will tell will be startling.

Maid May Change Story.
The disappearance of Celia Coleman, the colored maid in the Carman house at the time of the shooting, has caused a strong suspicion that the maid has changed her story.

District Attorney Smith refused to admit this, saying that he has not seen Celia since last Thursday, nor has he had any report that she has changed her story of the events in the Carman house the night of the murder, but at the same time Dr. Carman and his lawyer opened a vicious attack upon Mr. Smith and the detectives working for him for what they call the "kidnaping."

"Why are they all so hysterical about her disappearance?" demanded the district attorney, "I'm not going to tamper with her. I'd cut off my right arm and throw it to the dogs before I'd attack a woman in Mrs. Carman's position by unfair means."

He added that he knows where the maid is.

"Of course she has been greatly strengthened since the close of the inquest," said the district attorney. "We have several new witnesses whose testimony will be as vital as hers."

Another man who is closely connected with the prosecutor's office said: "If the case of the prosecution turns out as strong as we think it will, I would not be surprised when the trial comes to see that the witness who stands and tells a remarkable story. There were only three persons who knew what happened in the doctor's office before the killing of Mrs. Bailey. Of these three, one is dead."

The other two are Dr. Carman and his wife. It is believed that the range of possibility that Dr. Carman will tell that actually took place in his office that night, he will tell that from the killing of such a story Mrs. Carman would either be freed or would receive the worst a verdict of manslaughter.

Mrs. Jennie Duryea, the aged mother of Mrs. Bailey, at her home in Hempstead, has outlined her theory of the murder.

Thinks Shot Was Fired Within.

Was the window perhaps broken from inside is a question she is constantly putting to herself. She cannot drive from her mind the belief that the bullet was fired from within the room and that the furniture was shifted after the shooting and before the authorities arrived.

With a cry of maternal love and anguish Mrs. Duryea calls upon Dr. Carman for a truthful explanation of all that occurred. She herself is acquainted with every detail of the mystery and believes that he is holding back essential facts.

The doctor's wife was a madly jealous woman, she says. "In her blind passion she would have shot anyone who happened to be there. I could not have been there. I am sure that she could tell with certainty from one brief look whether or not the doctor's wife is guilty."

One thing that makes Mrs. Duryea sure at this moment that Mrs. Carman is guilty—haughty, heartless woman—is the fact that the doctor's wife has written a note and telephoned a message of sympathy since the slaying. Mrs. Duryea heard Celia Coleman at the inquest, and she believes the maid under instructions after coaching her to tell a story that would exonerate the doctor. "I do not know much about trials and that sort of thing," Mrs. Duryea explained, "but I know the poor, stupid, trembling thing was not allowed to tell the truth, and when she said 'saying right thing' she was saying 'saying what I want to say.'"

KILLER ITEM STILL HIT BY TRAIN, GASH ON HEAD SOLE HURT

Conferees, However, Hope to Avoid Necessity for Another Continuing Resolution.

House and Senate conferees on the District bill will probably hold another meeting tomorrow in an effort to break the deadlock on the bill which has existed for weeks. Some hope is expressed that an agreement may be patched up in time to make it unnecessary to pass another continuing resolution with regard to District appropriations.

Were it not for the trouble over the item for Thomas W. Keller, assistant doorkeeper of the Senate, there would apparently be little difficulty in reaching an understanding. The original item in the District bill for Keller was $125. The House is bent on refusing Keller anything, and a number of Senators, because they have known Keller for years, want to help him out. The strange spectacle is therefore presented of an item for a private claim being a serious obstacle in the way of passage of a great appropriation measure.

In Senate conferees committee circles, however, there is denial that it is the purpose there to renege on the Borland amendment relating to paying, provided the House will allow the Keller item, scaled down to $100.

Senator Martin, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, is personally favorable to adopting a compromise on the Borland amendment, whereby the shutting property owners would pay one-third the cost of street paving. But the Senate conferees themselves are understood to prefer the elimination of the Borland amendment altogether and to stand for the half-and-half system in its entirety. Senator John Walter Smith, who heads the Senate conferees, though he favors the Keller item, does not want to see a compromise on the Borland amendment.

Fair, Warm, and Mild, Is Forecast of Week
Generally fair weather in the East, with but little change in the temperature of the last couple of days is forecast by the Weather Bureau for the present week. East of the Rockies the temperature will be slightly above normal, while on the Pacific Coast, it will be little below.

Wilson, With Day Free, To Go for Motor Ride
President Wilson attended services at Central Presbyterian Church today, unaccompanied by any members of his family. There were no appointments on the President's list for today. This afternoon he will take a motor trip into the country.

Her Purse Stolen.
Mrs. S. A. Swiggett, of 42½ Eleventh street northeast, was the victim of a purse snatcher last night, who grabbed her handbag containing car tickets, change, and cards, and escaped into the night. She described the thief as about seventeen years old and very dark. At the time Mrs. Swiggett was at the corner of North Capitol and C streets.

KILLED DEFENDING DAUGHTER'S SUITOR

Mrs. Taylor Angered Husband. He Says, in Quarrel Leading to Tragedy.

Her throat slashed from ear to ear while having been struck by a train this morning, is the fortune of Elijah Fields, aged sixty-seven, who keeps a small dry goods and notions store at 1341 H street northeast.

At about 7:40 this morning Mr. Fields was struck by the second section of No. 4 train, of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, at Ivy City. He was picked up from the side of the track and hurried in an ambulance to the Federal Hospital, where it was discovered that he had suffered only a deep cut in the right side of his head in addition to the shock of the impact. Hospital surgeons would not permit Fields to be questioned as to how he failed to observe the approach of the train.

According to the statements of Mrs. Fields, Dr. V. H. Each, of the Columbia pharmacy, corner of H and Fourteenth streets northeast, and the pharmacist in charge, Mr. Fields has been suffering for some time from a nervous breakdown, having had recurrent attacks of melancholia and nervous depression. The pharmacist said that Mr. Fields had told him of great worries and frequently came in the drug store, where he would pace the floor, muttering to himself, and talk of his troubles.

Mrs. Fields said that for a number of years her husband had been subject to nervous attacks. According to her statement, it has been twelve years since the last attack, the present depression dating from about the first of June.

The injured man will probably leave the hospital within a day or so, according to advice from the institution.

British Admiral Expected to Escort Dictator to Coast; Carbajal to Be Named Provisional President, and Constitutionals to Cease March Upon the City, According to Unofficial Information.

MEXICO CITY, July 12.—All indications here today point to the resignation tomorrow of President Huerta.

It is expected that he will officially hand in his papers to Congress, immediately after it convenes tomorrow, and at once will depart for some Atlantic port, either Vera Cruz or Puerto Mexico, and within twenty-four hours will be safe on the high seas, headed for a foreign country, where he will spend his few remaining years.

Francisco Carbajal, the new foreign minister, more than likely will be named provisional President. He is due here tomorrow.

The capital is seething with excitement today. Not since the landing of the Americans at Vera Cruz has the entire populace been so interested in the political outlook.

"WAIT UNTIL TOMORROW," SAYS MINISTER.
While the resignation of Huerta has not been officially announced yet, all signs point to the correctness of the reports. Adolfo de la Lanza, minister of finance, who reached the capital from Europe yesterday, remarked significantly today that it was only a short time to wait until tomorrow for developments.

Meanwhile assurances are said to have been given by the constitutionals that hostilities will cease with Carbajal's assumption of office.

Rear Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock, of the British squadron, is now here, and it is assumed that he will escort Huerta and the latter's family personally to the coast, where they probably will board a British warship.

The departure of Senor de la Lanza and Generals Joaquin and Mario Maas and Roberto Esteve-Ruiz, whom Carbajal succeeds, is considered significant. All have been Huerta's men and his closest counselors. The Maas brothers are related to him by marriage, and Senor de la Lanza is second only to General Blanquet in position in the Huerta cabinet.

It is held that Huerta urged them to leave before he departs. The financial minister's statement on his arrival here that secret conferences had been in progress between representatives of Huerta and Carranza in New York; his declaration that peace soon would be restored in Mexico, and his intimation that the fighting would cease before the actual attack by the constitutionals upon Mexico City are also considered significant.

Wotherspoon at His Desk, Awaits Mexican News
Major General Wotherspoon, chief of staff of the army, was at the War Department today prepared to receive without delay any advices that came over the wire bearing on the critical situation in the Mexican capital. He was not in communication with Mexico City during the morning, however, and evidently Vera Cruz was undisturbed or developments today in Mexico City, for only routine dispatches were received from General Puntun.

Secretaries Garrison, Bryan and Daniels are out of the city. Their offices were closed during the day.

In the absence of official information of the reports from Mexico City, of the expected retirement of Huerta in favor of Senor Carbajal, such officials as were at their desks today declined to make any comment.

JUSTICE LURTON DIES SUDDENLY IN HOTEL AT ATLANTIC CITY TODAY

FAMILY AT BEDSIDE WHEN END CAME

He Had Been Suffering for Several Months, But Condition Had Not Been Alarming Up to Last Few Days.

Horace Harmon Lurton, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, died this morning at 5 o'clock in his apartments in the Marlborough-Blenheim, in Atlantic City, to which resort he had gone with his family ten days ago from Washington. Death was due to heart disease, with which the associate justice had suffered for the past year.

At his bedside when death came were Mrs. Lurton and their only son, Horace Harmon Lurton, Jr., and Dr. Sterling Ruffin, of Washington, who was summoned to Atlantic City yesterday.

The arrangements for the funeral have not been made, but it is probable that the body will be taken to the old home of the Lurons in Clarksville, Tenn., for burial.

Refused to Quit Work.
The death of Justice Lurton was not unexpected. He had been a sick man for the past year, but steadfastly refused to permit his associates on the Supreme Court bench to carry his work until last December, when his condition was such that he was compelled to cease all activity. The family went to Florida and remained in the South until April, when the justice insisted upon returning to Washington. Improved and strengthened, Justice Lurton resumed his place on the bench and continued his work until June 22, when the tribunal adjourned for the summer. Ten days ago, the family was in Atlantic City, and had contemplated spending the entire summer there.

Better for a Few Days.
The first few days at the resort seemed to furnish the desired change in climate, and the Associate Justice remarked to Mrs. Lurton how well he enjoyed the salt sea air. The old weakness began to return shortly, however, and Saturday it was decided to call Dr. Ruffin, the family physician, to Atlantic City. Dr. Ruffin left here yesterday afternoon, arriving in Atlantic City late in the afternoon, to find Justice Lurton in a precarious condition. The ailment with which the patient suffered, however, was beyond medical skill, and at 5 o'clock this morning death came.

Despite his failing health during the past year, Justice Lurton was never heard to complain. He strove to do his duty on the Supreme Court bench, and refused assistance from his associates in several instances.

Justice Lurton resided in a residence was at 1720 N street northwest. His family consisted of his wife and son, who were at his bedside, and a daughter, Mrs. Horace van De Venter, of Knoxville, Tenn.

The late justice had a distinguished judicial career. Since his graduation from Cumberland University his advance in the legal profession was rapid. After reaching of law and was honored in the State supreme court of Tennessee, he was appointed a circuit judge by President Cleveland, and during his term of office he became closely associated with former President Taft, who then was a circuit judge.

Justice Lurton sat together with Taft and Judge Lurton, together with the late justice, on the Supreme Court bench, and refused assistance from his associates in several instances.

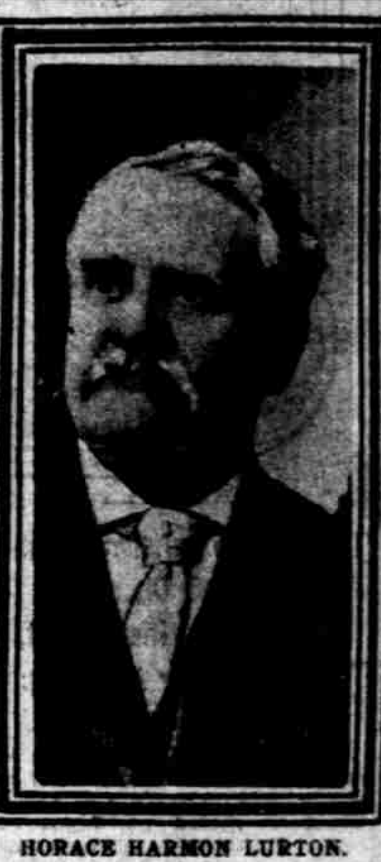

Had Distinguished Career.
Justice Lurton was born in 1844, at Newport, Campbell county, Ky. He was educated in the public schools until he entered the law at the University of Kentucky in 1862. He was elected judge of the supreme court of Tennessee in 1887, and served three years. He was captured while serving under General Morgan and later was released by President Lincoln upon a personal appeal of his mother. While free on parole he took a course of study at the University of Tennessee in 1887.

He was admitted to the Tennessee bar shortly after reaching of law and was in the time progress was steady and full of honor. He was appointed chancellor of the Sixth chancery division of Tennessee in 1890, and in 1891 was elected to fill a vacancy. In 1874, he was elected to the same position in 1876, without opposition, resigned in 1873, and returned to the practice of law.

Overcome by Cell Heat.
Harry Johnson, colored, twenty-three years old, was overcome by the heat in a cell at the Ninth precinct station house at 10 o'clock this morning, and was taken to Casualty Hospital for treatment. His condition is not regarded as serious. Johnson was charged with disorderly conduct.

$76,726,264 TOTAL OF TWO SPECIAL TAXES

Income and Corporation Levies Exceed McAdoo's Estimate by Million and Half.

Related payments of income and corporation taxes, which were due June 30, but which were paid within the one-day grace period, aggregated $3,540,388.75, bringing the total receipts from these sources for the last fiscal year up to $76,726,264. Secretary McAdoo's estimate of $75,000,000, therefore, is exceeded by more than $1,500,000.

Other Government receipts for the first ten days of the new fiscal year have turned the deficit of about $1,000,000 remaining July 1, into a surplus of $3,540,388.75, after current Panama canal expenses have been paid.

The payment into the Treasury of the $2,535,275.54 for the two warships sold to Greece, were $3,540,388.75, as against $1,000,000 for the same period last year.

Ordinary receipts for the first ten days of July, including the payment of Greece, were $3,540,388.75, as against $1,000,000 for the same period last year.

The total balance in the general fund of the Treasury at the close of business June 30 was $156,735,300.00.

Spirited Contest for Lurton's Place Certain
The death of Associate Justice Lurton of the Supreme Court, results in the creation of a vacancy on the court, in the filing of which there will be the intensest interest.

Although President Taft, through an unusual set of circumstances, was enabled practically to make over the Supreme Court, without respect to politics, he has made no Supreme Court appointments.

Unquestionably, a large number of administration circles will agree that the next few days there undoubtedly will be a long list of possibilities and active candidates mentioned.

One of the men who, it is said, will be seriously considered, and whose selection would find favor in many quarters, without respect to politics, is Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane, of California. As a member of the insular commerce Commission and as Secretary of the Interior Mr. Lane has made an admirable record. His friends believe he is likely to get the appointment.

Another man who is likely to be seriously considered is Fred W. Lehmann, of St. Louis, former Solicitor General. Mr. Lehman represented this country with Justice Lamar in the mediation proceedings at Niagara Falls.

At one time, there was talk that in case of a vacancy on the Supreme Court the President would appoint former President Taft to the bench. This report was not given much support at the time, but it is now being revived. It was said that Mr. Taft's name is likely to be much mentioned in this connection. It is not believed he will be chosen.

Says Carbajal Is to Take Chair Immediately
VERA CRUZ, July 12.—The report that Huerta is to resign was further strengthened with the arrival here today of Estava Ruiz, former assistant minister of foreign affairs, who declared that the plan of the officials in Mexico City is to have the President resign immediately, and to appoint Carbajal in his place.

Carbajal, Ruiz says, is to be the go-between, and will remain provisional President till Villa and Carranza agree upon a man.

"President Huerta has sent me on a mission to the capitals of the A. S. C. countries," Ruiz continued, "to thank them for their part in bringing peace between the United States and Mexico through mediation."
